Course Title: English Language Lab

Course Code: HUP100

Credits: 1, Marks: 100

Program/Semester: BTech (All Branches with One Half of the Groups Allotted for Semester 1 and the Other Half for Semester 2)

Course Description: To complement the theory courses in English communication taught in semesters 1 and 2 to all the BTech students, this laboratory course has been designed for them to bridge the gap between the theory and the practice. While the theory courses focus more on reading and writing, the lab curriculum does more on listening and speaking. However, the practical aspect of all areas of English communication including vocabulary, grammar, and interpersonal skills along with LSRW has been dealt with in the course. To attain the outcomes of the course and fulfil the professional requirements of the engineering students, the pedagogical focus remains on active and interactive peer-based learning via the audio-visual exercises cherry-picked from a variety of quality resources.

Course Objectives (COBs): The course intends to help the students to COB1: Enhance technical and non-technical vocabulary.

COB2: Develop listening and speaking competence with special focus on pronunciation and accent.

COB3: Improve reading, writing, and grammatical skills.

COB4: Cultivate interpersonal communication for professional purposes.

Course Outcomes (COs): Upon the completion of this course, the students will be able to CO1: Demonstrate considerable vocabulary enhancement and correct usage of English grammar (BTL 3).

CO2: Exhibit effective listening and speaking skills (BTL 4).

CO3: Display impressive reading and writing skills (BTL 5).

CO4: Present themselves proficiently in various professional settings verbally and non-verbally (BTL 6).
